SJ MAGIC

Weddings

Believe the Impossible

23 YEARS

There is a gap in every wedding day.

The ceremony has ended, the photographs are being taken, and your guests are standing with a drink in their hands wondering what happens next.

That gap is where SJ works.

A Member of The Magic Circle with 23 years of experience, SJ performs close-up magic and mind-reading for wedding guests across London and the UK. No stage, no announcement, no interruption to your day. He moves quietly through the room, performing for a few people at a time, and leaves behind the thing every couple hopes for: guests who are talking to each other.

Where the magic fits into your day.

I THE DRINKS RECEPTION

A reception rarely mixes on its own. SJ draws strangers into the same small circle, places a signed card or a borrowed ring into someone's hand, and gives them something none of them can account for. He is gone before the conversation is, and the people he introduced are still talking an hour later.

II DURING THE PHOTOGRAPHS

The hour you will never see. While you are away with the photographer, your guests are waiting. This is the part couples most often say they were worried about, and the part where close-up magic does the most work.

III THE WEDDING BREAKFAST

Between courses, SJ goes table to table. Each table gets its own short performance, so nobody is watching from a distance and nobody is left out. It fills the natural lulls in service without competing with the speeches.

IV THE EVENING

As the room turns around and the band or DJ sets up, SJ performs for the guests who are not yet dancing. Older relatives, quieter friends, the people who came for the couple rather than the party.

Believe the Impossible

The questions that come up most.

Will it interrupt the day?

No. SJ works around your schedule rather than through it. Nothing is announced and no moment of your day is given over to a performance. If your coordinator needs the room, SJ stops.

How many guests can you cover?

All of them. SJ plans his route through the room in advance so every table is reached, whether you are eighty guests or four hundred. A guest at the back gets the same experience as a guest at the top table.

How far ahead should we book?

As early as you can. There is only one of SJ and only one of your date, and summer Saturdays tend to go well in advance. If you have the date, it is worth checking availability now.

Will it suit our older guests?

Better than almost anything else you could book. Close-up magic needs no volume and no explanation. It reaches a grandmother and a nine-year-old cousin in the same room.

What do you need from the venue?

Very little. No stage, no power and no sound system. The only thing SJ asks for is somewhere private to change and leave his things.

What does it cost?

Every wedding is different, so SJ quotes each one individually. Send your date and he will arrange a short call, then build a package around your running order and guest numbers.

LONDON & UK AS STANDARD · PERFORMS INTERNATIONALLY

In their own words.

We invited Shyam to do some up close magic entertainment during our wedding reception cocktail hour after meeting him at the National Asian Wedding Show and were so glad we did. His card tricks in particular are amazing, it feels like he can actually read your mind, and the guests all really enjoyed it. We can't recommend him highly enough for any event.

NISHA HARE

Shyam performed for all of our guests, making sure that as many people as possible got to experience his talent. We didn't need to direct him where to go or keep tabs. Shyam was both proactive and discreet, and ultimately he was one of the key highlights of the night. A true professional throughout, from the moment you meet him to the incredible way he can make your guests truly believe in magic.

ENQUIRE

Tell SJ about your wedding.

He will come back to you within 24 hours.

He will want the date, the venue, roughly how many guests, and the shape of your day. If you are still working that out, say so.
